INFO r20thcentury.com

+ Originally designed by Wendell Castle in 1969 during the pop art movement, this limited edition table, of which only 25 exist, is a timeless classic. As part of Castle's exploration of radical plastic furniture, the table blurs the lines between sculpture, design and craft, while pushing the limits of plastic form through exaggerated biomorphism.

"I love how offbeat this table is! It's really more of a piece of sculpture than a furniture piece. It's really a work of art. The fact that it's made of molded plastic, is amorphous in shape and oddly proportioned, appeals to me."
